

PROJECT TITLE

Developing Resilience at the times of Existential Crisis

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

Humanity today is grappled with uncertainty caused by the complexity of COVID. No one knows when and how it will end. However, it has given some very important lessons to the human race. Globally, the Civil Society has emerged as an important support for the victims and their families. Unfortunately, they are not recognized as frontline workers, even if many have lost their lives. CSOs in many countries were not allowed to work as their ability was curtailed by restrictive civic space. Interestingly, CSOs starting from grassroots to the global level, used innovations, techniques to neutralize the above restrictions which gave them hope, confidence, and lease of relevance. This project aims in developing and sustaining these efforts and lessons so that CSOs remain major actors with rejuvenated civilization for the future.
